

SHOOTING INFORMATION

FACILITIES

Wausau Skeet & Trap Club is proud to offer the following shooting sports to both members and non-members:

- Trap - three fields
- Skeet - three fields
- 5-Stand field featuring ten traps
- Sporting Clays course through the woodlands offering challenging targets from up to 17 stations.

Also available is a heated and air conditioned clubhouse with snacks, beverages and ample room for meetings.

SAFETY

All posted range rules must be followed.

All guns MUST be UNLOADED with ACTIONS OPEN, except while on the shooting station.

Both EYE and EAR protection are required.

No alcoholic beverage consumption allowed prior to shooting.

Shooters and observers are expected to act in a safe manner at all times.

Shotguns only! Target loads. Shot size limited to 7½, 8 or 9.

TRAP A single machine (trap) throws clay targets at varying unpredictable angles. The shooter fires at five targets, one at a time, alternating with four other shooters, from each of five stations located 16 yards from the trap house. A 12-gauge shotgun is recommended for shooting target loads with a modified or full choke. Historically this game developed in Europe in the late 19th century and originally used glass balls as targets.

SKREET Clay targets are thrown by separate traps located in a “high house” and “low house”. Targets take the same path each time. The shooter moves through a total of eight shooting stations between the houses. Single targets and/or simultaneous doubles (one from each house) are thrown from each station. Any gauge shotgun is suitable for this sport. An open choked gun is recommended and only target loads may be used. Skeet originated in the United States in the early 20th century. Its name comes from a Scandinavian word meaning “to shoot”.

5-STAND Targets are shot on a Skeet field with five elevated shooting positions. It is very similar to Sporting Clays except up to ten traps are used with a variety of target presentations being employed. Targets may include a “rabbit” target that rolls or bounces along the ground, high targets thrown from a tower, or incoming and outgoing birds. Any gauge shotgun may be used.

SPORTING CLAYS This shooting challenge involves a walk in the woods much as one might take while hunting grouse. Usually 10 to 17 different shooting stations are located along the wooded path. Targets (“birds”) are thrown as single or doubles. A variety of clay target sizes and presentations are used. Any gauge shotgun may be used with target loads. Sporting clays, one of the fastest growing shotgun sports, was developed in England to offer the non-land owning “commoners” an alternative to hunting.
